EDUCATION ON WHEELS

It seems easier to think of the Traffic Superintendent, Mr. Morrison wearing a mortar board than a crash helmet, and carrying a cane than riding a motor bike. For the frequent patrols he makes around the city streets act as a definite stimulus to drivers. Shows wandering eyes become riveted to the road ahead. And there is a general sprucing up of behaviour—much like Jones Minor passing the Headmaster's study.

It is natural that from a leader like this should stem the idea of an education week for motorists. Law enforcement is of course a very effective form of education but the principle of on-the-spot direction has much more to commend it—for it is both friendly and embarrassing. Mr. Morrison's department, it will be recalled, recently organised a very effective Mr Zebra campaign for pedestrians. And now it is the turn of the motorists to be reminded of the salient features of that much neglected booklet, the Highway Code.

Short Essays

WE venture a suggestion here, in the context of road education: might it not be more profitable in future to punish minor offenders by asking them to write short essays on the rules of the road. Fines hurt but often fail to convey the gravity of the offence. We cite one example: how many parking offenders realise that in addition to breaking the law they may be obstructing the flow of traffic? Basically this kind of offence is one of lack of consideration and the imposition of a fine does not necessarily correct this fault we all suffer from.

On the lines of education, the recent Chatterworth report made several recommendations. Linked with on-the-spot guidance such as the Police are carrying out now in Kowloon is the provision of more mobile Police patrols. But this will take time to bring about and only when more traffic signals are installed and when the Police have surrendered their traffic engineering duties to the Roads Department, will men be freed to do this on a much bigger scale.

Never-ending

MEANWHILE the idea of circulating the "task force" now in Kowloon to other black spots on the Colony's roads should help to instil better habits and a clearer idea of what road safety involves. But as the Police know a blitz like this forms only part of a never-ending campaign.

The important thing—and this takes us back to the point at which we began—is for traffic patrols to make themselves seen much more frequently on the road. Not only seen, but heard. Patrolmen are needed who will pull a car over and deliver a lecture to the offending driver instead of taking names and numbers. It may seem an awful waste of time but a curbside ear-bashing stands a far better chance of getting results than the threat of a summons. More mortar boards on motor bikes are what this Colony needs.

RICKSHAW RIDES WILL COST MORE

A rickshaw ride is to cost more as from tomorrow, August 1. For a journey lasting five minutes, the rider will have to pay 50 cents instead of the existing 30 cents permitted by law.

Rickshaw riders usually pay more than the regulation charge already.

This increase is introduced in the form of an amendment to the Road Traffic Ordinance as notified in today's Government Gazette.

'Miracle' Of U.S. Train Crash

Menomonee, Wis., July 30.

Seven coaches of the speeding North Western Railroad's Twin Cities "400" went off the tracks at the edge of a 100-foot embankment today and at least 100 persons were injured.

All but one of the derailed coaches crashed halfway down the cliff leading from the tracks to U.S. highway 12. Only the trees of the rugged northwest Wisconsin woodlands prevented the cars from going all the way.

Dunn County Sheriff, Delbert Karns said "it was a miracle" that none of the 199 passengers aboard the Minneapolis-to-Chicago streamliner was killed.

The count of 100 injured, many of them reported to be children, came from C. P. Erickson, dispatcher at the St. Croix county sheriff's office in Hudson, Wisconsin. The derailment took place just inside the St. Croix county line, 12 miles west of Menomonee and near the town of Wilson, Wisconsin. —UPI.

AMERICAN OIL KING DIES

Pittsburgh, July 30.

Michael L. Benedum, American oilman reputedly worth $100 million, died at his home here today, at the age of 90.

Benedum was the founder and principal shareholder of the Plymouth Oil Company. He also founded a number of other oil firms and probably discovered more oil than any other man.

He entered the oil business because he offered his seat on a train to an elderly oil man who befriended him and gave him a job.

He prospected in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio and sold his rich finds to big companies for huge profits. He came one of the world's richest men. He had a large part in early development of oil fields in Romania. —Reuters.

Reported Clash Between Govt And Irregulars

London, July 30.

London observers believe the Communists are trying to foment civil war in Laos and that this will be the new Far East trouble spot.

Communist Pathet Lao irregulars are now reported in action in Northern Laos against the Government army which a few months earlier they refused to join.

These irregulars have been armed and equipped by neighbouring Communist North Vietnam and linked with Communist cadres.

Integration

Earlier this year the Royal Lao Government tried to integrate the Pathet Lao Battalions with the Royal Army.

But only one of the two dissident battalions agreed. The other obstinately refused and moved off to the North Vietnam border where it set up a newspaper. Its despatches were frequently quoted by Communist Hanoi Radio.

Both the Royal Lao Government and the American State Department have branded North Vietnam as trouble makers in this new situation.

Today the United States accused Communist North Vietnam of "sabotaging" the integration of the Indo-China peace settlement in directing guerrilla attacks on Laos.

Peking Radio has replied that allegations such as those made by the Lao Government and Washington are "baseless". It said that the Lao Government was agitating for months to have the disbanded international commission supervising the armistice in this area revived on the grounds that the Communist Pathet Lao Army would not integrate with the Royal Lao Government.

Communist Plot

This Britain has steadfastly refused to accept that this was a carefully rigged Communist plot to start trouble in the area.

Under a front-page headline "Communists plot to invade Laos" the Daily Telegraph stated:

"Military action against Laos which appears on first reports, to amount to a Communist-supported invasion, has been going on for two or three days. Reports of fighting received in London by the Foreign Office are causing deep concern."

The Times editorial commented:

"If the fighting means that this area is again to come under Communist influence the prospect is indeed dangerous."

"But it is too soon to conclude that the fighting and the charges made from the Communist side over the past two months mean a more aggressive Communist policy from outside." —Special Correspondent and agencies.

MATADOR GORED

Valencia, July 30.

Spain's internationally famous bullfighter Luis Miguel Dominguez was caught and seriously gored during a bullfight here today.

First reports from the ring indicated that the wound was serious. Doctors were still operating on Dominguez a half hour after he was caught and thrown while fighting his third bull of the day in a "mano a mano" (hand to hand) fight with brother-in-law and rival Antonio Ordóñez.

WOMAN WILLS HALF MILLION TO DOG—HUSBAND A DOLLAR

San Francisco, July 30.

A wealthy San Francisco woman who "always preferred animals to people" left more than half of her million-dollar estate to perpetuate the memory of a terrier named "Bingo" — and cut off her husband with exactly one dollar, publication of her will showed today.

Mrs Amy Roger Bachman, who died last January, left more than $500,000 (about $214,000) to the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals to establish a memorial fund for "Bingo."

Police Brutality Alleged

London, July 30.

Allegations of police brutality and of worsening relations between the police and the British public were made tonight in a British Broadcasting Corporation radio programme.

Members of the public, including clergymen, probation officers and ex-police men gave their views and experiences anonymously.

A girl said she had been beaten during police questioning because she would not make a statement as the police wanted it.

The programme concluded with a discussion between Mr. Chuter Ede, Home Secretary in the Labour Government of

No Enquiry To Be Conducted

London, July 30.

Mr R. A. Butler, British Home Secretary, said today he is satisfied that there had been no decline in the standard of conduct of the London police.

He did not propose holding an enquiry into their methods, he added.

He had been asked by Mr R. Ledger, a Labour member in the House of Commons what increase there had been in complaints about the police in the last two years and whether he was aware of "the deteriorating relationship between the Metropolitan police and the public." — China Mail Special.

Only Human

Mrs Halpin said, "People in court often make allegations that they have been roughly handled by the police, and to a certain extent one dismisses it. But there is always a possibility that it could have happened. Police are only human."

Mr Ede said of the manslaughter allegations: "It happens, but I doubt whether it happens every story of rough handling which is gossiped about in public houses."

The former Home Secretary added: "I believe the police force as a whole has outstandingly high standards."

Conel St. Johnston pointed out that foreigners were "constantly being sent here by their governments to study British police methods, which was a good recommendation." —Reuters.

Hongkong's May Queen, Miss Guni Mohan, at her wedding to Mr Lachu B. Molwani recently.

MAY QUEEN'S HOUSE BURGLED

The newly-wed May Queen's home was burgled. More than $4,000 in cash and pearls were stolen from 345 Tai Hang Road, first floor, Causeway Bay early yesterday morning.

Mr L. B. Molwani, husband of the May Queen, Miss G. Mohan, told the China Mail this morning that he lost US$449 and HK$400 in notes and a $1,000 "double-string" pearl necklace.

"The burglary must have occurred between 1 a.m. and 8 a.m.," he said. "We got up at 10 a.m. yesterday. I found my pearls and other things in the verandah," he added.

Jewel Box

"Strange thing is that the thief did not seem interested in a jewel box which he threw away on the verandah floor," Mr Molwani continued.

"It must be because he was afraid that the jewels might be identified and traced later," Mr Molwani said.

The Molwanis were married on July 23 and moved into their new home just last Tuesday. "How did he get in anyway?" "Well, somehow he must have got in through the verandah door. But the door was prised open without any damage," Mr Molwani concluded.

He Intends To Marry Aga Khan's Girl Friend

Paris, July 30.

American film script writer, Mr William Rivers Miller, 37, said he intended to write a happy ending to his sudden romance with 19-year-old Mexican heiress Sylvia Casablancas, despite her parents' efforts to erase it.

Sylvia, whose Riviera datings for years have been with Prince Karim, the young Aga Khan, was escorted home by three plain-clothesmen yesterday morning for slaying out too late—and not with the Prince but with Mr Miller.

The American, reputed to come of a wealthy Texas oil family, made clear today he considers the Aga Khan a closed chapter—and himself the whole book—in lovely, young Sylvia's life. He also indicated he hopes to marry her. —UPI.

Kowloon Fire PAPER STORE OWNER WEEPS

The proprietor of a paper store wapt today when $10,000 worth of paper, moved into his shop only the day before yesterday, went up in flames this morning in a big fire in Kowloon.

Also destroyed were three other double-storey wood and metal huts and the first floor of a fifth hut in Carpenter Road near Sai Tau Village, Kowloon City.

The fire broke out at 8.00 a.m. and was put out at 8.27 a.m. There were no casualties. The cause of the fire is being investigated.

Five fire appliances and two ambulances were dispatched to the scene.

The shops severely damaged by fire were a barber shop, a charcoal godown, a paper shop and a tailor shop.

Appeal On Theft Of 20 Cents Dismissed

The Appeals Court today rejected an appeal by an Urban Services Department coolie against his conviction for stealing 20 cents from a telescope machine.

After dismissing the appeal, the Chief Justice, Sir Michael Hogan, commented on the fact that some magistrates did not record relevant evidence during court hearings.

Ng Man-chiu, 23, was fined $200 or one month in goal for stealing 20 cents from the telescope at the upper Peak Tram terminus, in Central Magistracy on June 20.

GROUND'S OF APPEAL

He had appealed on the grounds that the magistrate did not pay sufficient attention to a statement by Mr Somerville, the lessee of the machine, that the telescope had later been found to have been jammed.

Ng said he was merely trying to recover 20 cents he had inserted previously, when the telescope did not work.

Sir Michael said this evidence would not have materially affected the magistrate's conclusion, and dismissed the appeal.

MAGISTRATE'S RECORDS

He added that magistrates should make an effort to write down all relevant evidence.

"On a busy day, they could not be expected to record all the evidence, but they should take minutes of essential testimony," he said.

The Chief Justice said that in this case the magistrate in his findings had referred to evidence of which no record appeared to have been made.

"However, the evidence is of no great relevance in regard to this conviction, and I see no reason to interfere with it on account of this omission," he added.

The Queen Elizabeth Leaves NY

New York, July 30.

The liner Queen Elizabeth sailed out of New York harbour today after rush repairs of the damage suffered yesterday in a collision with a freighter.

Fog which contributed to yesterday's accident delayed the ship's departure for more than eight hours.

The liner with 1,950 passengers and crew of 1,200 on board yesterday suffered a slightly damaged bow in the accident just off Connetquot.

Please fog resulted in the liner missing its favourable sailing tide. The Queen Elizabeth finally left, more than 24 hours after its original scheduled sailing time. —UPI.

Chairs Wielded During London Meeting On Central Africa

A FIGHT in which steel chairs were wielded broke out tonight at a meeting on Central Africa held at the Central Hall, Westminster.

Commons In Recess

London, July 30. The House of Commons recessed at 5 p.m. today for summer vacation, after a final session at which the members of Parliament discussed the situation in the Arabian Peninsula, and atomic energy.

Officially the House of Commons was to open again on October 22, but observers did not expect this date to hold good. Most of the members were expected to return to the end of October, probably October 22 or 23.

The Speaker has the power to summon Parliament if necessary. Such a summons would have to be issued to hear a reading of a decree dissolving Parliament prior to elections.

Observers expected this summons about September 25. It was noted in this respect that administrative personnel of the Labour Party parliamentary group was instructed today to return to their posts on September 24.—A.P.

Shylocks' Rates To Be Cut

Singapore, July 30. The new left-wing Singapore Government is planning to introduce new laws to curb the profits of the State's "Shylocks."

Minister of Labour and Law K. M. Byrne said the Government is to impose tighter control over money lenders, whose rates of interest are to be slashed. It is understood that interest on unsecured loans will be cut from 48 to 18 per cent and those on secured loans from 36 to 12 per cent.—U.P.

Alleged To Have Stolen Papers

London, July 30. A court at Ilkerton was told today that a man was alleged to have broken into a police station and stolen papers relating to offences about which he had been interviewed.

The man, 32-year-old Alan Lowe, was said to have taken the papers home and burnt them.

He was committed for trial at Derby quarter sessions. He was charged with breaking and entering the office of the Derbyshire Constabulary Divisional Headquarters at Ilkerton on July 1 and stealing a number of receipt books and coal delivery tickets belonging to the Constabulary.

A detective stated that Lowe made a statement that he was upset because of his wife and children.

He was alleged to have said he walked through a side door at the police station which was open, gone upstairs to the Criminal Investigation Department room and unlocked it with the back-door key to his home.—China Mail Special.

Banda Treated Like The Rest

London, July 30. Sir Robert Armitage, the Governor of Nyasaland, said here today that Dr Hastings Banda, African Congress leader in the territory, would be treated like any other of the people detained during the recent crisis.

"When these detainees will be released is my affair," the Governor told reporters at London Airport before flying to Salisbury. The Nyasaland Government have now released 650 of the 1,300 people arrested during the protectorate's state of emergency declared on March 3. It was learned in Blantyre today.

A further 134 have been tried and convicted, and the remaining 534 will be held until the governor is satisfied they can be released without prejudice to law and order.

Naples, July 30. Naples baked under a merciless sun today with more than 900,000 persons—half the population—without normal water supplies for the fifth day.

The Santa Lucia cinema, the city's first, burned down early this morning mostly because firemen had no water to fight the blaze. Some citizens were selling water for 60 lire a litre. The southern part of the city, the most densely populated, was cut off from normal water supplies last Sunday when a landslide blocked a main aqueduct leading from the mountains. Water officials said they expected to have the aqueduct functioning "by the end of the week."—U.P.

Hiroshima, July 30. City Government officials said 110 persons died during the year ending July 28 of after-effects of the 1945 atomic bombing of Hiroshima. This brought to 60,175 the number of persons city statistics say died in the bombing or later from radiation. Hiroshima will observe the 14th anniversary of the bombing on August 6.—U.P.

Trying For Joint Report

Geneva, July 30. East and West tomorrow make their first attempt to marry together something out of their latest Berlin proposals into a joint report as the Geneva Foreign Ministers conference approaches its closing stages.

But, diplomatic observers said, the attempt will be extremely modest. Officials of both sides will try merely to reach common definitions of what are officially called "technical questions"—understood to cover in the first instance missiles and rocket weapons.

MADE CLEAR

Spokesmen of both sides made clear that the conference after nearly nine working weeks, did not get nearer a Berlin agreement today.

However, it was extremely important to ensure that, if both sides can agree on any feature of an interim Berlin settlement, they are at least talking the same language and using the same terms.

The feature of a Berlin settlement on which East and West are probably nearest agreement is that there shall be no

Symbolic Of Geneva Talks?

Geneva, July 30. The Big Four Geneva conference—while has been described in some press reports as foundering—today witnessed a sinking that may have appeared symbolic to the onlookers. Foreign Ministers.

During the meeting of the ministers this afternoon at the French Villa Barakat, a sailboat overturned on the Lake of Geneva (Lac Lemann) in full view of the statecraft. The Ministers interrupted their conversations on Berlin and watched a rescue launch go out from their side of the lake. The two persons aboard the boat were rescued.

It was not known whether the conference would have the same happy ending.—A.P.

nuclear weapons, missiles or rockets stationed in the former German capital. But, it was asked, did the Russians thereby expect Western infantry to remove their bazookas? Or would it be argued that a missile covered artillery shells and other equipment normally considered as conventional?

DEFINE PHRASES

If the official moved on to try to define other phrases used by both sides in their proposals for a Berlin settlement such as "subversive activities," it was thought they would have no chance of reaching agreement. The Russians do not admit that subversive activities are carried out against West Berlin.

If the officials succeed in their modest beginnings, observers believed they might lay the foundation for a later agreed document on where the conference has found agreement, to be possible and where it is not possible.

CONSIDERATION

Such a document, it was stated, could then be submitted to a summit conference for the consideration of heads of government. Meanwhile the belief was growing in conference circles that the conference might not after all end on Wednesday, despite what was described as American "shock tactics" to get it finished by then.—Reuter.

Reinstatement For Notts Chief Constable

Nottingham, July 10. Nottingham's Watch Committee today "reluctantly" decided to reinstate the city's suspended Chief Constable, Captain Athelstan Popkiss, from midnight on August 9.

In a statement announcing the decision after a 75-minute meeting, the Socialist-dominated Watch Committee said it wished to record "its lack of confidence in the impartiality of the Chief Constable."

It also criticised the intervention of the House Secretary Mr R. A. Butler, saying it had made no consideration of the matter more difficult.

BY LETTER

South African-born Captain Popkiss, who is being informed of the decision in a hand-delivered letter later today, is 45 and due to retire at the end of this year. He was suspended by the Watch Committee three weeks ago after he had refused to give information about a Scotland Yard inquiry he had instigated into a recent visit to East Germany by two Labour councillors and a local party official.—China Mail Special.

Nixon Down A Mine

Moscow, July 30. American Vice-President Richard Nixon today was lowered down the shaft of a copper mine at Deglarsk and stopped at the 2,000-foot level for an inspection and a chat with miners. Earlier Mr Nixon had lunch with the mine director. The Vice-President was to return to Sverdlovsk in the evening.—A.P.

Negotiations In Printing Dispute Facing Collapse

London, July 30. Peace talks for a speedy end to Britain's six-week-old printing dispute were facing collapse here tonight.

Lord Birkett, the independent chairman appointed to bring union and employers together, gloomily announced that prospects of an early settlement were now remote.

But he said the parties would meet tomorrow morning to see whether a "grave situation" could be relieved. Earlier union leaders representing 100,000 idle printers stalked angrily from the headquarters of the British Master Printers Federation after day-long talks had floundered.

One union chief said: "We have not been on our knees enough."

Proposed Terms

The unions are now insisting that the proposed settlement terms of their pay-and-hours claim should be submitted to a ballot of members before resumption of work.

This means that the "back to work" move would be postponed for at least three weeks. Asked if tomorrow's talks would probably be the last until the ballot Lord Birkett replied: "It is a reasonable assumption I would have thought."

Mr G. G. Eastwood, General Secretary of the Printing and Kindred Trades Federation, said: "We are all desperately hoping that we shall find a way out of this difficulty."

Provisional

Provisional agreement has already been reached by the two sides on a four-and-a-half per cent wage increase and an immediate reduction in the working week to 42 hours.

About 4,000 print firms and 1,000 provincial newspapers were being closed by the dispute.—Reuter.

Vandalism In British War Cemetery

Amsterdam, July 30. The Burgomaster of Venray has voiced displeasure with the town's youth for their destructive misbehaviour at the British war cemetery here.

At the Town Council meeting last night, the Burgomaster Mr A. M. Janssen, said the visitors' registers at the World War II cemetery were repeatedly damaged and defaced with "foul remarks and drawings." Pages had been torn out of the books containing the names of the soldiers buried there, he said.

He added it was "a shame that this cemetery of British servicemen killed in action is being frequented by potting couples" and said that "nowhere else in Europe is a British cemetery in such a deplorable condition as this in Venray."—China Mail Special.

Mr. K To Visit U.S. Says Columnist

Washington, July 30. The syndicated U.S. columnist, Marjorie Childs, wrote today that Mr Khrushchev would visit the United States by the end of this year.

He described this as the educated guess of a high official whom he said had access to policy decisions.

The columnist added that Vice-President Richard Nixon had made it plain to Mr Khrushchev that an official invitation would be forthcoming sooner or later.—Reuter.

Wearing Out

Westmorland, Calif., July 30. The four-man police force of this Southern California community is looking forward to shunning a burden off its shoulders.

About two years ago the four officers got new uniforms, complete with shoulder patches. Only trouble was the name of the town was spelled wrong—"Westmoreland" instead of "Westmorland"—and police in neighbouring towns rarely missed an opportunity to point it out.

"It won't be too much longer," Police Chief Melvin McGill said today. "They're about worn out and soon we'll order new ones."—U.P.

AMERICAN AIRCRAFT WILL LEAVE FRANCE BY OCTOBER

London, July 30. Two wings and four squadrons of American nuclear bombers and fighter aircraft will move to Britain from France and Germany by October, it was officially announced today.

A United States Third Air Force spokesman declined to say how many aircraft were involved but added: "A fighter wing usually consists of 75 aircraft." Earlier this month, the United States Government decided to withdraw nine fighter-bomber squadrons, consisting of 200 aircraft and 6,000 servicemen and their dependents, from their bases in Eastern France, and to redeploy them partly in Britain and partly in West Germany.—Reuter.

Craze for hypnotism worries the doctors

New York. A SPREADING epidemic of "quick and easy" courses in hypnotism has the U.S. medical profession worried. The American Medical Association is leading a drive to warn both practitioners and patients alike that they are "playing with dynamite."

Numbers of Americans are being led to believe that hypnotism will help them solve almost any problem—from smoking or eating too much to playing a better game of golf or increasing one's sex appeal.

The danger

As reports of extraordinary hypnotic successes are circulated, the demand for more practitioners increases. The result is that the "quickie" courses—some of them requiring only three days' study—are attracting eager students.

"The greatest danger of these short-cut courses in hypnotism," said Dr. Harold Rosen, a psychiatrist and professor at John Hopkins University, "is that they do not include instruction in psychodynamics."

Psychodynamics is the science of the motivation of human behaviour, and without it, hypnosis is "potentially dangerous."

In spite of its dangers, there are some of the "minor miracles" being claimed for hypnotism:

A Fundamentalist southern minister, the Rev. J. Douglas Gibson, hypnotises his parishioners "by the hundreds—to make them feel closer to God." Many of them are also allegedly cured of nail-biting in the process.

A Florida woman motorist who kept falling her driving tests was put into a "medium-deep trance state" by a man who described himself as a "hypnotist and consulting psychologist." She passed her next test.

HOW BARDOT HAPPENED—2

THE EFFECT of Brigitte Bardot on the world has been therapeutic; a timely tonic just when it was needed. Proving the point, her public has in only a few years become universal. Her films have been mostly French, but her message was international. In Paris recently a famous reporter talked to Brigitte Bardot's mother, who told for the first time how her daughter was started on a career nobody could have foretold. The beginning came when the picture on the left above was published in a French magazine, and led to the man who launched her film career and became her husband—Roger Vadim. Now Brigitte Bardot's mother tells the extent of Vadim's influence over her daughter.

BY JOAN HARRISON

"MY ex-son-in-law Vadim is an odd fellow in many ways, but I have never been jealous of his influence over Brigitte. I'm still very friendly with him. I admire his intelligence, but that has never stopped me from saying what I thought about him, or he about me, for that matter." So says Mme. Bardot.

"A lot of nonsense has been written about Vadim acting as a kind of Svengali to Brigitte and moulding her into a completely different being. That's not true at all. At the time he met Brigitte he was anxious to launch his own career, as all young people are. He saw in Brigitte a means of doing so.

"They were in love, and for him it was both a personal and a professional relationship. Like a tandem bicycle, you know."

"He made her give up her dancing lessons and leave school before she had got her Bachelot [The French equivalent of the school-leaving certificate]. I wanted her to go on with her dancing and get her Bachelot—after all a diploma is always a diploma. But Brigitte was in love and wanted to do everything he wanted."

Brigitte became engaged to the mercurial White Russian when she was 16. They married two years later on December 20, 1952. Mme. Bardot's distrust of the film world nearly put an end to Brigitte's film career right at the start.

Loves life

Vadim is the source for this information. Her mother's distrust had so influenced Brigitte that she confessed to Vadim later that when he had first come to the family's Passy apartment when her mother was away, she had kept him secretly in the hall—in case he made off with the silver.

But Vadim, then assistant to film director Marc Allegret, couldn't get the girl out of his mind.

"She was the living image of the heroine of my first novel, written when I was a boy," he says. "I called it 'The Wise Sophie.' And the way she spoke—almost it seemed in whole phrases from my book."

Brigitte's first film test wasn't really successful, but by then she and Vadim were in love.

Vadim maintains he did not create her personality. He says: "I didn't even really develop it. It was there all the time."

And what really is that personality? Her mother explains it this way: "She loves life for all it brings her. And I think heaven sometimes for the good sense that has always saved her at the last minute from making appalling blunders."

Very shrewd

Some of the things she says make her appear stupid. She isn't at all. She is a very shrewd little girl.

But not, perhaps, as shrewd as all that. For although "And God Created Woman" made over 4,000,000 dollars in the United States, and her film "Une Parisienne" £250,000 in France alone, until recently Bardot was only getting £15,000 a film.

"She's the incarnation of sensuality" in Vadim's opinion.

"She's not really temperamental," says Mme. Bardot, "that's all false, and only on the surface. At heart she's still the little bourgeoisie she always was."

To illustrate her point Mme. Bardot recounts that recently when her daughter arrived in St. Tropez where Mme. Bardot also has a house, Brigitte's first words of greeting were: "Mummy, have you got the pink sheets from the laundry yet?"

"I said: 'Really, Brigitte, haven't you got anything else on your mind but sheets?'"

"I know my daughter," says Mme. Bardot. "We have always been a united family and Brigitte's first marriage and career has not meant that I have seen little of her—quite the contrary."

Mama's girl

Facts help to check Mme. Bardot's maternal sentiments. For Brigitte's Paris apartment is just a stone's throw away from her mother's home about a brisk three minutes' walk. And until last summer all her holidays at St. Tropez were spent in her mother's villa.

Then, however, Brigitte bought a villa of her own, La Madrague. "And had to barricade herself in most of the time," said Mme. Bardot. "That's what gives her attacks of nervous depression, not being able to live a normal life."

"It's absolutely impossible for her now—a crowd collects around her immediately.

"Still, in her heart, she loves being a celebrity and she loves making films. She plunges into each one with great enthusiasm. But she depends a lot on direction—a good director makes a good actress out of her."

Vadim maintains that Brigitte likes to excite men. "She likes to feel a sentimental and sensuous tension around her," he said.

According to him she has gone a long way from her upbringing and environment.

Mme. Bardot hotly denies this.

"Brigitte was born under the sign of Balance [In the English horoscope charts Balance is Libra, September 22 to October 21], and she takes after the sign. She is a balanced person."

"She's not so sure of herself," says Vadim, "although she's an exhibitionist by nature."

I think Brigitte the girl is probably all of the things that her mother and Vadim see in her.

The phenomenon of Bardot the star is probably best described by Vadim: "She is a photographic phenomenon," he says. "Most of her success is due to the fact that she is 100 per cent photogenic."

In the last five years Brigitte has made 20 different films. None of them has really had a good Press in France and some of them have been frankly bad.

She was launched as star material at the 1953 Cannes Film Festival, not by the festival's organizers, but by the photographers of all nationalities.

"Practically every movement she makes is photogenic," repeats Vadim.

Jolly bomb

It was not until Vadim's picture "And God Created Woman" became a sensational success in the United States that French cinemagoers began to wake up to Brigitte, the film star, as against Brigitte as a newspaper story.

And it was about this time, too, that her marriage began to break up.

"Vadim was the very first man in her life," says Mme. Bardot. "After all, she was engaged at 16 and married at 18."

"She was really too young to realise what she wanted. I don't think there would ever have been a divorce though, if I hadn't tried to make her into a kind of myth."

"My daughter is like a good-tampered bomb. You should see her when she visits us. She kisses everybody, including the maids and the dogs."

The Picture and this man Vadim

ONE LED TO THE OTHER AND LAUNCHED THIS PHENOMENON NOW CALLED SIMPLY 'B.B.'

When they were married—Vadim and Brigitte. They say he was her Svengali. Says Vadim: "Her personality was there all the time. I didn't develop it."

"She always has some funny story to tell us and acts it out until she has us all in stitches. Vadim has a tortured personality. He was brought up like that. There was always that difference between them. Brigitte tried very hard to turn herself into what he wanted, because she was in love and anxious to please. The real Brigitte is a laughing, happy girl full of practical jokes and enthusiasm."

THE END

THIS FUNNY WORLD!

"It's a trick mirror... makes their feet look smaller!"

"How is it that I—who don't even know how to drive—have to keep telling you what to do?"

South got his top the hard way. He bid three hearts and after North jumped to five South went on his slam.

PARISIENNES LOVE LINGERIE

THE women of Paris are crazy about lovely lingerie.

The stores are full of frothy nylon petticoats, lace can-can half-slips, satin slip and pantie sets, matching sets of nighties and housecoats in non-crease Sea Island cotton—and wonderful, luxurious negligees.

Lingerie, which now has its own "collection time," has come into its own, and, following in the wake of this triumph, all the "miracle" fabrics have come into their own, too.

Drip-dry, non-crease, non-iron—every sensible Parisienne knows that her lingerie should have these three qualities.

Most amazing is the variety of nightwear. From cotton baby-doll shortie pyjamas to a straight nightdress in a glorified rayon that looks good enough for a ball.

One unusual creation was in sheer mouseline of Sea Island cotton that looked like a summer evening dress. It turned out to be a housecoat, and was shown with a matching parasol!

Wash Boiler Useful

"WHAT is so amusing, Madame?" inquired the Chef.

"This picture in today's newspaper," I replied. "See, it's a regular old-fashioned copper-bottomed wash boiler. Why, it's the same kind used for boiling the clothes in the days before washing machines. Only this wash boiler is copper-finished on the outside and equipped with a wire rack. But the cost is sky high!"

"Why I see, Madame? Ah, out," mused the Chef. "Plus ça change, plus c'est la même chose—the more it changes the more it is the same thing." I suggest that our readers search through the attic and basement, bring out the old wash boiler and fix up a wire rack for it. Then use it on the barbecue grill to boil corn in a la mode—my newest invention."

Home Beauty Care

HOW often do you have a facial? Once a month? Once a year?—if then?

If you've ever felt cheated after one of your facials and said sourly after looking in the salon mirror: "But I don't look any different"—it's little wonder!

Your skin isn't like a winter coat, to be worn hard and ill-treated for weeks and then taken to the cleaners to be renovated.

Any beauty specialist will tell you that it isn't the occasional professional treatment that keeps your complexion looking soft and young. It's the regular, nightly care you give your skin at home.

Massage

Many women put a little skin food over their wrinkles then sit back waiting for them to disappear. They won't. A good complexion, like a good figure, needs exercise. And that means massage.

There are two basic rules that you must remember. All massage movement must be upward and outward, and always use a cream or oil—olive or almond oil is best—or you may stretch your skin.

Begin by planing your hair back under a towel and spreading a light film of oil over your face. Then, with the fleshy part of your fingertips, stroke the middle of your chin gently but firmly up and out towards the ears.

For ageing lines around the mouth, use your first, second and third fingertips. Start just below the outer edge of your bottom lip and stroke in circular movements, working up and out in small circles until you are covering that hard nose-to-mouth-line.

Trouble Spots

Now work from the sides of your nose up to the temples, placing your fingers below the nostrils and stroking upwards and out.

The eyes and the forehead are two trouble spots where fine lines tend to gather. And however fine they are, it's as well not to let them deepen.

Start gently at the outer corners of the eyes and work towards the nose, describing small, clock-wise circles beneath your eyes. When you reach the nose, reverse the process and work back in small anti-clockwise circles.

Now for your forehead. Place your fingertips in the centre of your brow, and stroke up and out towards the hairline. Follow this by placing your fingers between your eyes and describe a semi-circle over your eyebrows out as far as the temples.

Continue each massage movement for three or four minutes before moving on to the next.

Superfluous Fat

Finish up at your chinline. Place both thumbs under the centre of your chin and work them firmly up along your jawbone until you reach your ears. After a few minutes, add a kneading movement, with a gentle pinching of the superfluous fat.

Finally, pat firmly beneath your chin, using the backs of the fingers and slapping with a loose wrist movement.

This treatment should take you less than 20 minutes. Isn't 20 minutes a night a small price to pay for a firm, smooth glowing complexion without wrinkles or blotches?

But it's a job for every day—not just when you got a spasmodic urge. Give it a real chance, and see the results.

Music In The Night

—Everyone Except General Tin Is Surprised—

By MAX TRELL

IT was late at night and everyone in the house was asleep. The moon shone in through the windows of the playroom. Everyone was asleep there, too.

Mr Punch was asleep in his rocking chair with a shawl thrown across his shoulders. Mr Punch's wife, Judy, was asleep in another rocking chair. She had her apron thrown over her head.

Asleep Under A Chair

Mary-Jane, the Rag Doll, was asleep under the chair with her back against one of the legs. Teddy, the Stuffed Bear, was asleep under the same chair with his head in Mary-Jane's lap.

The Canary was asleep in his cage which hung on the wall at the edge of the window. He had his head under his wing.

Near The Bookcase

Hawthorn, the Small-Sized Wooden Indian, was asleep under the curtain near the bookcase. He pretended the curtain was a wigwam.

Even General Tin, the Tin Soldier, who stood by the door, was leaning on his musket. His eyes were closed.

Knarf and Hanid, the Shadows with the Turned-About Names, were fast asleep on the edge of the carpet just in front of the bookcase.

All at once, Hanid opened her eyes. She sat up. She listened. "I thought I heard some music," she said to herself. She listened some more.

"Yes, it is music!" she exclaimed a second later.

Awakened Her Brother

Then Hanid woke up her brother, Knarf, who was sleeping beside her.

Knarf sat up. "What's the matter?" he asked in a startled voice. "I just heard music," said Hanid. "It sounds like a parade. Listen!"

"It can't be a parade," Knarf said. "It's the middle of the night."

"Listen, just listen," Hanid said again.

Knarf listened. "Yes, I hear it," he finally said. "It's music. I can hear drums and horns. I can hear futes and bugles. It is a parade."

Knarf and Hanid woke up Mr Punch and Judy, Mary-Jane, the Rag Doll, Teddy, the Stuffed Bear, Hawthorn and the Canary. They didn't have to wake up General Tin for he had one eye open the whole time.

Every Night

"I hear that music every night," he told the others. "It comes from that look over there."

He pointed to a big book lying on top of the bookshelf. Hanid ran over to take a look at the book.

"It's a music book," she called back to everybody else in the room.

"See, it's half open. All the music is coming out."

"I never heard of such a thing," said Mr Punch's wife, Judy. "Nobody ever heard of music coming out of a music book!"

"It's coming out of this one," said Hanid. "Just look!"

Hanid opened the book a little more.

"All the music is coming out!" Hanid exclaimed.

Knarf, Teddy, Hawthorn, Mr Punch, the Canary, Mary-Jane, General Tin and Judy at that moment saw a dozen horns and bugles and futes and trombones and flutes and flutes and piccolos and tubas and cornets and clarinettes sticking out of the half-open music book.

They made enough music to be a parade.

Then Hanid pushed the book together so that it closed tightly. Instantly the music stopped.

And five minutes later everyone in the playroom was asleep again, and the moonlight shone in silently and stole out again all through the rest of the night.

Rupert and Raggedy—27

Rupert sees no sign of Raggedy outside, but just when he re-enters the garden he hears a scratching noise as the creature appears from somewhere and scowls at him from the top of the gate. "So there you are," cries Rupert. "Where have you been? And what's that you're holding? Oh, this is too bad! You've stolen my Daddy's pipe again. Drop it this minute!" Instead of obeying Rupert, Raggedy turns and leads him the other way before dodging aside and scampering off towards the Common.

AMERICAN LEAGUE BASEBALL

Chisox Maintain Leadership With 3-1 Win Over Yankees

New York, July 30. The Chicago White Sox remained a game in front of Cleveland in the American League race today by beating the New York Yankees, 3-1, while the Indians scored a 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Early Wynn limited the Yankees to six hits in picking up his 14th victory of the season against six losses.

He struck out nine batters to increase his career total to 1,042 which is more than that achieved by any other active Major League pitcher.

The Yankees, who now trail pace-setting Chicago by 10½ games, went ahead, 1-0, in the top of the fourth inning on a run-producing single by Tony Kubek.

The White Sox tied the score in the bottom of the fourth on singles by Luis Aparicio and Nellie Fox and Al Smith's infield grounder.

Went Ahead

Chicago then went ahead for good in the seventh on Sherman Lollar's double and a single by Billy Goodman. Smith singled in the Sox's final run in the eighth. It was Chicago's seventh victory in its last eight games.

Minnie Mirowski drove in all the Indians' runs against the Red Sox.

Boston tied the score at 3-3 in the sixth on a three-run homer by Frank Malzone, but Mirowski chased home Larry Locke with the winning run in the ninth with a long drive to left field. Locke, the winning pitcher, had walked and moved to second on Vic Power's single.

A two-run single by Mirowski gave Cleveland a 2-0 lead in the third inning. The Indians' veteran outfielder also singled Martin across from second in the fifth. Mike Fornieles, who relieved starter Tom Brewer in the eighth inning, was the loser.

The Detroit Tigers backed up Frank Lary's steady pitching with a 15-hit attack in trouncing the Baltimore Orioles, 11-2. Lary allowed only seven hits in registering his 13th victory of the campaign. Al Kaline hit his 17th homer for the Tigers.

Washington was at Kansas City in the only American League night game.

National League

Willie McCovey, playing his first game in the Major Leagues, smashed two triples and two singles to spark the San Francisco Giants to a 7-2 National League victory today over the Philadelphia Phillies and end a four-game losing streak.

McCovey, brought up from Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League during the night, scored three runs and drove in two more. Every ball he hit was a smashing line drive.

Manager Bill Rigney installed the six-foot, four-inch 21-year-old at first base, moving Orlando Cepeda to third and benching Jim Davenport.

With McCovey's spectacular debut, the rest of the Giants came to life and battered Philly hurler Robin Roberts for nine safeties.

Roberts was let down by four Philadelphia errors during the first five innings that left him in unearned runs.

Young Mike McCormick hurried the victory for San Francisco, sending the Phils down on seven scattered hits as he chalked up his 10th win against eight losses.

Both Philadelphia runs came in the fifth inning after two were down. Catcher Joe Lon-nest walked and Roberts, Joe Koppe and Ashburn hit singles.

In night games, Chicago was at Milwaukee, St. Louis at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at Los Angeles—UPI.

The Much Travelled Pebble

David Shaw, 22-year-old international sleepchaser and captain of Birmingham University eight-man team, shows (above) the much travelled pebble which they had carried to John O'Grady's last week while running non-stop the world's longest relay.

RECORD TIME

Their record time of 92hr. 19min over the 87½ miles from Land's End was 2hr. 14min better than the record set by Cambridge University three weeks ago.

The relay has now been run four times by Universities.

Times, officially recorded by the Sunday Dispatch:

	hr.	min.
Oxford	1957	105 35
Exeter	1959	86 56
Cambridge	1959	94 33
Birmingham	1959	92 19

How do the runners feel about this gruelling relay? David Fiddes who tomorrow starts a road-building vacation job said: "The first day you feel you are running the whole distance on your own. The second day you feel you were made to attempt it. The third day you feel nothing. The fourth day you feel fine!"

On August 22 Bristol University take up the challenge.

SURREY PROGRESSING TOWARDS FIRST INNINGS LEAD OVER INDIA

London, July 30. Surrey, county champions for the past seven years, were progressing steadily towards first innings lead against the Indian cricketers at the Oval here today when by tea the county stood only 54 runs behind with seven wickets in hand.

Rain, which restricted play to less than four hours yesterday, again interrupted the game and the start was delayed 65 minutes this morning.

Then the Indians lost their last four wickets for the addition of 17 runs and were all out for 154.

Pankaj Roy, India's captain for the match and their opening batsman, unfortunately missed both a century and the distinction of carrying his bat through the innings.

Admirable Batting

Roy made 95 out of 154, before falling to Sydenham, the left-arm pace bowler on an appeal from Swetman, the wicket-keeper. Roy was ninth out, and the innings closed at the same score.

On a green pitch which always gave a little encouragement to the seam bowlers, Roy batled admirably throughout his four and a quarter hours at the wicket, and hit eight fours, five sixes and hit well to leg, and defended skilfully, whereas all his partners, except Nadkarni, had exaggerated the danger of the pitch and looked most uncomfortable.

In fact, Roy and Nadkarni hit 140 of India's total, the remaining nine batsmen, of whom six made "ducks", hitting only 10 among them. Sydenham (five for 42) and Gibson (five for 48) maintained a steady fast-medium attack and took full advantage of the pitch and the shortcomings of the batsmen.

Revenge

When Surrey replied, they soon lost Stewart, caught at short square-leg after he had twice hooked Surendra Nath to the boundary. Then Parsons and Barrington, by sound batting, added 72 in 60 minutes, and seemed to be putting Surrey well on top.

Nearing the tea interval, however, Gupple, avenging himself for punishment from Barrington, who cut strongly, by turning a leg-break round that batsman's legs on to the stump. Barrington's 47 brought his total against the touring team this summer to 540 in eight innings, one not out, at an average of 77.14.

Fletcher was dropped off Gupple before scoring, and Parsons fell to Surendra Nath in the last over before tea, taken with Surrey at 100 for three.

Scores

Close of play scores were: India 164 (Roy 95, Nadkarni 45, Sydenham 5-42, Gibson 5-48). Surrey 214 (Barrington 7, Constable 48, Gibson not out 49, Parsons 38, Surendra Nath 5-40, Umrigar 2-48, Gupple 2-68, Kripal Singh 1-16). Surrey 100 for three wickets. —AFP and Reuter.

In Gaol When Burglary Was Committed: Man's Successful Appeal

The Appeals Court today quashed the conviction of a man sentenced to gaol for burglary after the Crown admitted the man had been in Stanley Gaol at the time of the theft.

Lam Hung-tung, 35, had been sentenced on July 3 to a total of six months in gaol on two counts of burglary.

He had pleaded guilty to both charges. He appealed against sentence on the second charge, in which the theft was alleged to have taken place on December 20 last year.

Disturbing

Mr. D. N. E. Rea, Crown Counsel, told the Chief Justice, Sir Michael Hogan, that Lam was in gaol on that date.

Sir Michael said: "I find this very disturbing."

Lam told the Court his mind was confused at the time, and he did not realise he had entered a wrong place until he was in gaol.

The Chief Justice quashed the conviction on the second charge, but allowed the six months on the first charge to stand.

July Price Index Up 3 Points

It is announced in today's Government Gazette that the Retail Price Index for the month of July is 130—an increase of three points compared with that for the preceding month.

The rise is attributed to higher prices recorded for fresh and dry vegetables which more than offset lower prices for fresh fish.

HK Textile Circles Concerned

London, July 31. Textile manufacturers in Hongkong are concerned at the small quantities of cotton piecegoods ordered by the United Kingdom for re-export since the agreed ceiling came into force in February, the Hongkong correspondent of the Financial Times said today.

"Some manufacturers believe they have been let down by the United Kingdom Cotton Board, which had guaranteed the continued import from Hongkong of piecegoods destined for re-export estimated at some 15 per cent of total imports from the Colony," the correspondent commented.

PRESSURE

"It is said in some quarters in Hongkong that the Lancashire industry may have persuaded U.K. importers to include re-export goods in the ceiling and not take advantage of the special procedure for exemption on proof of ultimate destination. There is pressure for the matter to be taken up with the Cotton Board," the correspondent said.

CROWN COUNSEL SAYS:

Fatal Blow Must Have Been Deliberate

Mr. C. R. Sneath, Crown Counsel, prosecuting in the trial of Chau Shui-wan, 25, charged with murder told the jury this morning that the fatal blow to Yin Mei-chu must have been a deliberate thrust.

The blow was struck during a struggle between Chau and another person, Chan Woo-tik, at which Yin was present.

She was the estranged wife of Chau and worked at the Lee Tai Textile Factory, where the fight took place on April 22.

Mr. Sneath said "Chau was trying to tell the jury yesterday that while he was fighting for his life with this man Chan, through some accident the woman got stabbed. I suggest he showed no regret when giving his evidence as to what happened to her."

"Indeed, when he was telling you about the quarrel, the rancour which he still held against her still showed through."

Not Seen

"I suggest to you that the wound, which went right through the body of Yin Mei-chu, could not have been inflicted by waving the arms about, but could only have been caused by a deliberate thrust at the woman."

Mr. T. Shurlock, Counsel for the defence, reminded the jury that Chau's evidence as to the attack by Chan Woo-tik, had been corroborated by two witnesses, although nobody had actually seen the fatal blow given to Yin.

He also recalled that Chau, just after the woman had fallen, had said "I have killed somebody; tell the Police. I will wait for them."

Reluctant

The most important point seemed to be the fact that Chau Woo-tik, who died of wounds received, was very reluctant to say who had been his assailant. He had merely said "I was careless and received an injury."

It was only at the last that he was prevailed upon to give the name of the man with whom he struggled.

"At no time," said Mr. Shurlock, "did Chau state who had killed Yin Mei-chu. Why?"

Mr. Justice A. D. Scholes started to sum up the case which is expected to finish today. It is being heard by a jury of four women and three men in the Supreme Court.

Mr. Sneath was assisted by Mr. D. G. Willis, Crown Counsel, and Mr. E. R. Moss, Acting Superintendent of Police.

Mr. T. Shurlock is instructed by Mr. D. Q. Cheung, of F. Zimmern & Co.

COMMUNISM as a result of Police diligence, has been reduced to a state of inactivity in Hongkong, according to the annual report of the Inspector-General of Police.

Following extensive raids in the Colony during the latter part of 1932, the local Communist Party was rendered non-existent.

However in the early part of the year, an effort was made to reorganise the party but this attempt was short-lived because of the arrest of certain members of the "Working Committee".

IT seems that the back of the Nazi revolt in Austria has been broken, but at a heavy cost.

The rebels apparently have suffered fewer casualties than the Government troops who suppressed them for they were entrenched or behind barricades.

Sufficient Italian troops and war planes to meet any emergency in Austria have been moved up to the Brenner Pass in the Carnic Alps and Carinthia.

The situation in Europe following the callous murder of Dr. Dollfus is still extremely tense and is being watched with the greatest interest by the Great Powers.
